December 2022 Project Title: Sympatho-Adrenal-Medullary (SAM) System Reactivity to Social Stress Tasks: A Potential Alternative to Measuring Cortisol Reactivity to Social Stress Among Women
Source: Psi Chi International Honor Society in Psychology
Major Goals: To investigate whether social stress tasks lead to increased activation of the sympatho-adrenal-medullary system, measured via salivary alpha-amylase, and determine the differences between the SAM system response and the hypothalamic-pituitary-adrenal (HPA) axis response, measured via cortisol.
Direct/Indirect Costs: $1,495; funded
Role: Principal Investigator
- May 2021 Graduate Summer Research Grant
Project Title: Inflammatory Response to Experimental Social Exclusion: Potential Moderation by Loneliness
Source: Psi Chi International Honor Society in Psychology
Major Goals: To investigate whether a social rejection task (i.e., Cyberball) leads to increased inflammation in the experimental group, compared to the control group, and determine whether chronic loneliness acts as a moderator of this relationship.
Direct/Indirect Costs: $1,470; not funded
Role: Principal Investigator
- March 2021 – APPIC Call to Action on Equity, Inclusion, Justice, and Social Responsibility
November 2021 Project Title: Practice Anti-Racism Clinically (ARC)

Direct Costs: $19,406.00
Role: Graduate Researcher Fellow
